The children that have been breast-fed have the immune system of the mother till the age of three. Between ages 3 and 4, the children are building their own immune system. During this age period, the children are frequently sick and the parents need to stay calm and know that this increased sickness is a part of the child's development [1]. Frequently, during this time period the parents freak and agree to surgical removal of the tonsils of the child and the tonsils play major role in the immune system-they protect the body from air-born viruses and with the tonsil removal the parents lower the immune abilities of the child for life.

The tonsils of the child can be saved for life, if the parents give to the child oil vitamins, which strengthen the defense of the mucous membranes, such as Vitamin A, Vitamin E, Vitamin D, and Vitamin F (insulated from flax seeds) or give to the child to drink boiled flax seeds. If the freaked parents start giving to the child antibiotics each time the child is sick, they can ruin his health for life because the antibiotics are killing all intestinal bacteria - bad and good. Antibiotics should be taken only if the disease is life threatening and always taken with yogurt to repopulate the intestines with good bacteria – it is not done in the US.

Biorhythm studies done in the US [2] showed that after stopping the intake of some antibiotics, the biological rhythms of the sick organ started drifting. It would take 5 to 7 years until this drifting of the biorhythms would manifest itself with symptoms as a chronic disease of the organ. The chances are that you would never figure it out that the present chronic disease is a result of the antibiotic you took 5 to 7 years ago. Thus, the wide use of antibiotics is the major reason why elderly have so many chronic diseases. In the US, elderly at age 70 have in average 7 to 8 chronic diseases [2], while in Russia the elderly have in average 15 chronic diseases [3].

The chronic diseases, the number of which grows with the aging, impair the vision and hearing of the elderly. I read in an ancient book of acupuncture [4] that chronic disease of the kidneys always go hand in hand with lost ability to hear, chronic disease of the lungs with losing the ability to smell, congested liver with losing the ability to see, etc. [5]. Also, since with the aging the biological rhythms in the body become less and less integrated, the elderly become more sensitive to light and noise.

The drastic increase of the number of chronic diseases in elderly is of course related to the wide use of antibiotics. I was in Emergency Hospital for X-raying of broken leg and all the doctors were surprised that at age 80, I was not taking any medication and I didn't have any chronic diseases. The explanation is simple – I am allergic to antibiotics. The wide use of antibiotics in our time and the fast mutating viruses, which mutate fast and adapt fast to whatever the new antibiotics we create, made the antibiotics less and less efficient.

We had to create stronger and stronger antibiotics, which had more and more side effects. With the new stronger and stronger antibiotics, we are killing more and more the sick person and less and less the fast mutating viruses. Obviously, this is not the way to deal with viruses - we need to look for a new different way to deal with them. Such new different way of dealing with viruses was developed in Ukraine in the Institute of Informational Wave Technologies in Kiev [6]. They are killing the viruses with the frequencies of weak informational electromagnetic field, which imitate the weak informational electromagnetic field of our aura used in Reiki healing.

Homeopathic remedies are different modality of healing with frequencies [7]. Our scientists and medical doctors deny the therapeutic effect of homeopathic remedies with the words that there is no substance. Yes, after so many water dissolutions and shakings, there is no substance left any more, but the frequencies of the substance are imprinted on the structure of the water, whose memorizing ability was raised after the shaking, which created more free H-bonds [7]. I think it is high time to switch to a new modality of healing and the healing with frequencies (informational healing) seem to be the healing modality of the future.
